FOREWORD

Welcome to this our 22nd sale. Please note that on this occasion the morning session will comprise the ancient and foreign coins and banknotes so that our auction will not clash with another held by colleagues on the same day.

We have quite a diverse selection to offer you in this sale, comprising a few ancients, some interesting banknotes and a good selection of foreign and British coins and medallions. Highlights in the Foreign section include the spectacular and finest known Australian 1856 sovereign, a good group of Cypriot coins and a large selection of French coins, the majority of them slabbed. In addition there is a very rare Venezuelan real dated 1821, some rare and choice Indian and South African gold coins, and some interesting cut and countermarked coins of the West Indies. Following this section is a comprehensive collection of British Trade Dollars which includes the proof 1930 example struck by the Royal Mint in London, graded by NGC as Proof 63 and believed to be the only known example.

The British section includes a number of highly desirable hammered gold coins, such as a mint state Edward III noble, a Richard II/Edward III mule noble that is the only known example in private hands and an Edward V angel, offered for the first time in a London saleroom. Further attractions are a rare silver penny of Queen Cynethryth of Mercia, who ruled for only 5 years in the late 8th century, an exceptionally rare Elizabeth I angel, an attractive James I rose ryal, a very choice triple unite, as well as a so-called pattern or proof unite, of Charles I, and a choice Cromwell broad.

Highlights of the milled section are a couple of choice Charles II crowns, some very rare elephant and castle gold coins, an 1839 Una and the Lion five pounds and an 1887 pattern crown in silver by Spink. The sovereign section includes 1825, 1831 and 1839 proofs, a choice 1823, a rare Type 1 1848 as well as two 1859 Ansells and the extremely rare 1863 827 with no die number on the reverse. Other rare pieces include the 1886 and 1887 Melbourne shieldbacks, the 1908 Canadian issue in choice condition, 1923 and 1926 Sydney mint examples and a 1924 South Africa.

If you are unable to attend the sale, you can bid free of charge through www.the-saleroom.com and the catalogue can be viewed online at www.sixbid.com. Credit for putting this catalogue together goes to Lisa Norfolk, Tim Wilkes and Joel Elias, with special thanks to Bruce Lorch for his supplementary cataloguing. Production was by Seth Freeman and Graham Byfield of Baldwin's.

We wish to thank you all for your continued support and wish you every success in your bidding.

"The business of the bank consisted in discounting, at a rate which could in no case exceed four per cent per annum, bills of exchange and such other commercial paper as the directors should choose to accept; in dealing in gold and silver,...". A major part of the business seems to have been to service a massive loan to the Royal Treasury. The British Trade Dollar (BTD as it is popularly known throughout Asia), first introduced in 1895, was engineered by Britain to compete worldwide with the other trade dollar-size coins, notably the Mexican silver 8 Reales and the USA Trade dollar. Millions were minted over the few decades of its existence and it became broadly accepted, being especially favoured by Chinese merchants and bankers for its steady, reliable silver content. Many were chop-marked as they passed through the hands of money changers. Countless pieces bear the subtle, incuse mint mark “B” for Bombay, hidden in the spear’s tip-end trident. Others were made in Calcutta and London. Not all pieces struck at the Indian mints bear the mint’s mark - it seems to have been irregularly applied to the dies. The end of the coinage came swiftly in 1935, when Hong Kong passed its Currency Ordinance in that year and began issuing substitute money (both coins and paper currency), which was quickly and almost universally accepted, meaning that the BTD became obsolete and many millions went into the melting pots. The coin’s familiarity diminished over the following decades, and many more were melted during periods of spurs in the value of silver. Many remain today, but far, far fewer than were created during three reigns. The great rarity offered here is a Proof of Record, or Record Proof, created by the Royal Mint to preserve samples of the coinage type. Proof mintage for 1930 is unknown but it is invariably tiny for such issues. Proofs are known for many dates, some not seen more than a few times per decade. This is a choice specimen and finer than some of the other rare survivors from this long-ago era. It is a numismatic treasure.

(S.1660/1521; N.1306/1281; Schneider 142/115), extremely fine and exceedingly rare, one of only two known examples £14,000-18,000

This noble is the second known example of a mule struck at Calais from an obverse die of Richard II's type 1b and an Edward III post-treaty group III reverse.

The need to strike coins in the name of Richard II following the death of Edward III in June 1377 was hampered at Calais by a shortage of dies. A small series of nobles was struck with unaltered Edward III post-treaty obverses of Lawrence group III, paired with new reverse dies of Richard II of Webb Ware type 1a, clearly distinguished by the R in the centre of the floriate cross. See, for example, Schneider 117. Some ten specimens are known of these Edward III/Richard II mules.

Prior to the discovery of the coin offered for sale here the only known specimen of the Richard/Edward muled noble was in the British Museum collection (AN19446001). The BM coin is struck from the same obverse die but is in a far poorer state of preservation exhibiting considerable rust marks and wear.

One of the few known legitimate issues of the tragic boy-king, Edward V, this golden angel was part of a minuscule issue created during the 76 days of his reign, which famously ended when the son of Edward IV was deposed by his uncle, Richard, Duke of Gloucester. He and his younger brother languished within the prison of the Tower of London, and both died mysteriously, ending all claims to the throne by the 12-year-old boy or his brother. The mystique which caused their disappearance inspired numerous stories over the succeeding centuries. The numismatic story of the reign is superbly summarized by Peter Woodhead in his reference on the Schneider Collection (Sylloge of Coins of the British Isles, 47, Part I, pages 40-42), the essence of which as regards the gold angels is that those bearing the legend reading in part DI GRA were a continuation of the type of Edward IV using the new obverse die, and importantly coins made from it 'were probably struck under the direction of Lord Hastings acting without indenture but by mandate of the Lord Treasurer. These are thus attributable to Edward V and possibly were struck before June 13 in view of Hastings' dramatic disgrace and execution on that date (May-June 1483. 49lb 10oz of gold struck)'. Woodhead concludes that the most recent research into this reign indicates that this angel, formerly attributed to the father, Edward IV, is now seen to have been issued by his son, at London. It is among the rarest of all English hammered gold coins. A scant number were minted during May and June of 1483, only a few having survived the tumult of the ages.

While the image of King Charles here is not so fancifully engraved or deeply detailed as it appears on certain other triple unites, it is stark in its imagery, the sword unusually short and blunt as if broken at the tip, and the surrounding royal legend consists of neat, slightly smaller letters than are most frequently encountered. Moreover, the continuous scroll of the reverse is here mated with the date 1642, whereas most triple unites bearing this first date of the issue type (Schneider varieties 284-287) present the declaration on three distinctly unconnected, wavy lines (the so-called Shrewsbury reverse). The continuous scroll was the style used at Oxford consistently in 1643. This 1642-dated coin might therefore be viewed as a sort of model for the style which appeared throughout 1643, in a host of minor stylish variations. Woodhead mentions that the coiners for this latter style of the declaration came from London.

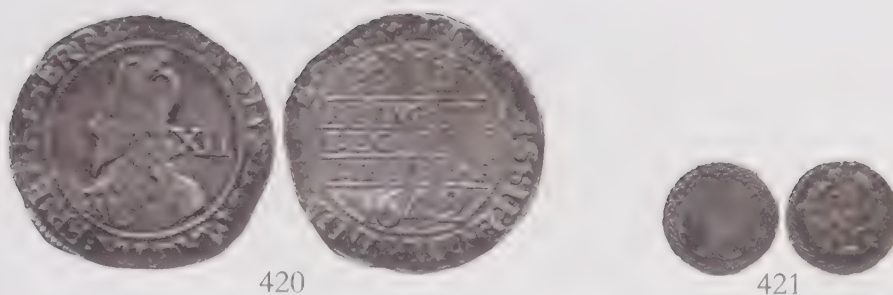

Various difficulties compromised King Charles I's traditional divine right, ranging from his Catholic marriage (with Henrietta Maria of France) to revolts in Ireland and Scotland, but most serious of all were his various clashes with Parliament. His early popularity had waned when he failed to aid Protestant allies during the Thirty Years War, and he seemed to think in concert with Catholic ecclesiastics. Against the wishes of Parliament, in need of funds he reintroduced long-obsolete feudal taxes including the widely hated Ship Tax. Through a quarter of a century, his reign witnessed an unusual number of internal political/religious battles, while external war threatened the kingdom. As he aged, both rumour and substance weighed heavily against the king. At last, members of the 'Long Parliament' seized power in January of 1642, forcing Charles to march north. He reached Nottingham by late August, then went on to Oxford, where he set up court in October and began to make ready for war. On 26 October, the Civil War commenced at the Battle of Edgehill. Most of the war's famous battles and sieges - at Naseby, Newark and Oxford - ended by the spring of 1646 but all negotiations for peace failed and open hostilities began again in the summer of 1648, led by a Scots invasion. During all this time, coinage was solely the king's prerogative, traditionally his right and his alone in the kingdom, and the history abounds with stories of college plate and other local riches being converted to money bearing the king's name, perhaps most famous of all his massive triple unites (30 shillings) in gold, which were the ultimate images of his monetary power and by far the largest repositories of wealth in coinage form. Most of this money coined at Oxford was used for procuring supplies, arms, rents and other necessities, not least of which was loyalty. In one of the war's early skirmishes, at Wellington, the king urged support when he made what has come down through history to be called the Wellington Declaration. He vowed to uphold, even enforce, the Protestant religion, the laws of England, and the liberty of parliament, thereby seeking to dissuade any and all opponents that he was pro-Catholic, or a monarch who might disavow laws for his convenience and thereby compromise English liberty as had become so cherished since King John signed Magna Carta (the Great Charter of the Liberties of England) at Runnymede in 1215. His vow became his war slogan and appears as the reverse inscription on this and other triple unites. The Civil War ran intermittently from the autumn of 1642 until Charles was beheaded on 30 January 1649. Never before had an English king been brought to trial as a monarch, accused of treason, and executed. Most of the coinage made at various, often rudely established, mints as Charles evaded the more powerful opposing army, perished long ago. At their best, many of the pieces, when new, bespoke the anguish of the king as they were sometimes poorly engraved, unevenly struck, and blemished at issue. To think that a coin such as this, minted shortly after the Civil War broke out, made of soft gold and never intended to be saved, has come down to us in such nearly pristine condition simply seems impossible, and yet here it is. By the time the Civil War ended, the concept of kingship had changed forever. Never again would an English sovereign possess the kingly powers of Charles Stuart. This deeply detailed coin is truly an emblem of its age.

My dear Sir

I have often thought what I would ask acceptance of – feeling sure you would value any trifle which belonged to my late Husband, and have now decided upon sending off on Wednesday a Box of Medals which previously belonged to "Queen Charlotte". I would have had the case cleaned up but feared the Medals may get injured. Hoping they may reach you safely – and that you are in good health

Believe me

Very sincerely yours

Frances Fripp

CONDITIONS OF SALE

(1) St. James's Auctions [the Company] is a division of Knightsbridge Coins. These sales at public auction are undertaken as agent only, acting on behalf of the seller. The contract of sale for any lot will be between the seller and the buyer.

(2) The buyer of any lot will be the highest bidder. In the event of any dispute, the auctioneer shall have absolute discretion to settle the dispute as he thinks best; this may mean re-offering the lot for sale.

(3) The auctioneer shall have absolute discretion to divide any lot, combine two or more lots or withdraw any lot or lots without giving any reason. In the case of a dispute, he may re-offer a lot for sale. The auctioneer also has the right to refuse any bid or bids without giving a reason.

(4) The Company and auctioneer shall have absolute discretion to refuse admission to their premises or attendance at their auction of any person they deem unsuitable, without giving any reason for, or prior notice of, their action.

(5) The minimum increment between bids will normally be 5%. The auctioneer has the right to refuse any bid which is not in line with this increase. He also has absolute discretion to vary this increment as he sees fit.

(6) (a) All lots are subject to a Buyer's Premium of 24.00%, inclusive of VAT, (20% + VAT), payable by all buyers.

(b) In the case of a lot marked with a dagger (†), import VAT at 5% will be added to the hammer price and will be payable by the buyer if resident in the EU. If the lot is being exported outside the EU, this import VAT can be waived or refunded on proof of export.

(c) The symbol "G" appearing next to a lot in this catalogue denotes that the item is 'investment gold' and, therefore, a VAT-registered trader can submit a claim to H M Customs and Revenue to recover the VAT element of the Buyers' Premium.

(7) Each bidder shall be deemed to act as principal unless the Company acknowledges in writing prior to the auction that he acts as agent for a named third-party principal. For bidders unable to attend the auction in person, commissions will be executed free-of-charge. Such bids must be written and must be received at least 24 hours before the sale begins. The Company cannot guarantee to execute bids received less than 24 hours before the sale. 'Buy' bids will not be accepted. The Company shall not be liable for any errors or omissions in executing such commissions.

(8) All buyers must, if requested, notify their name and address to the auctioneer and, if required, provide additional proof of identification, bank references or other credit references. All buyers must pay the full purchase price, at the point of collection of purchases, or a fractional deposit as may be determined at the auctioneer's discretion, unless the Company has previously arranged credit terms. Seven working days must be allowed for clearance of personal cheques before delivery can be made unless a prior agreement has been reached. A 2% surcharge will be applied to all credit card payments.

(9) Ownership of lots does not pass to the buyer until the Company has received payment in full.

(10) All lots, however, are held to be at the buyer's risk from the fall of the hammer. All lots shall be removed by the buyer within seven working days after the date of the sale. Any lots not so removed may become liable to removal, insurance and storage charges. Such lots may, at the auctioneer's discretion, be re-offered for sale at auction or by private treaty without further notice to the buyer.

(11) All lots are offered for sale subject to any reserve price that may be imposed by the seller. The seller may not subsequently change the reserve without the agreement of the Company. Where a reserve has been set, only the auctioneer may bid on behalf of the seller. Lots are normally reserved at 80% of lower estimate, with auctioneer's discretion. Unless re-offered for sale, the collection of unsold lots shall be the responsibility of the vendor.

(12) (a) Lots are sold as shown with all faults, imperfections and errors of description and lack of authenticity. Neither St James's Auctions nor the vendor shall give any warranty to any buyer in respect of any lot or be liable for any fault or error of description or lack of genuineness or authenticity of any lot. All statements as to items sold, whether made in catalogues, during the course of the auction or otherwise, are statements of opinion only and are not and shall not be taken to be statements or representations of fact. St James's Auctions reserve the right in forming their opinion to consult and rely upon any expert or authority considered by them to be reliable.

(b) Notwithstanding the foregoing, if any lot, other than a miscellaneous item not individually described in the catalogue, should be proved by the buyer to be not genuine or authentic, or to have been wrongly described in any material respect, the buyer may reject the same provided that he shall have given notice of his intention so to do and shall have returned the same to St James's Auctions within one month from, and in the same condition as at, the date of sale. The onus of proving a lot to be not genuine or authentic or to have been so wrongly described shall lie with the buyer. Proof of the inability of any recognised expert or authority to express a definite opinion shall not discharge such onus. If the buyer shall discharge such onus, the auctioneers shall rescind the sale and repay to the buyer the price paid by him. Save as provided herein, St James's Auctions shall not under any circumstances whatsoever be liable for any costs, expenses or damages (whether direct, indirect, special or consequential) incurred by the buyer in respect of any lot, whether or not as a result of any fault, imperfection, error or description or lack of genuineness or authenticity, including but not limited to loss of any kind of profit whatsoever.

(13) Save as provided in the preceding paragraph of these conditions buyers must satisfy themselves as to the accuracy of their purchases at the time of delivery. St James's Auctions cannot be held responsible for any discrepancy which might be discovered after the lots have been removed from either the auction room or the auctioneers' premises.

(14) As stated in paragraph (1), the Company acts solely as agent between buyer and seller and shall not be held responsible for any default by either party or for any action or claim that may arise in connection with any lot.

(15) Any part of the purchase price still outstanding after the auction, in line with the terms of paragraph (8), shall be paid in full within thirty days of the date of the auction. Without prejudice to any other rights, the Company reserves the right to charge interest on any overdue payment at a rate of three per cent per month. In the event that the company shall have paid the vendor (normally 35 days after the sale) and part of the purchase price is still outstanding, title to the lot will pass to the Company. The Company shall then have the right to sell any other goods belonging to the buyer and held by the Company for whatever reason at such a price that the company, in its absolute discretion, thinks fit. The buyer shall also reimburse the Company for any additional costs incurred in this process.

(16) Buyers accepting commissions from third parties do so at their own risk. They remain responsible to the Company for full settlement according to these conditions

(17) By making a bid, the buyer acknowledges his acceptance of these conditions and agrees to be bound by them.

(18) If any buyer fails to comply with any of these Conditions, the lot or lots in respect of which the failure is made may at the discretion of St James's Auctions be put up again and resold. The damages recoverable from the defaulting buyer shall include, but not be limited to, the auctioneers' expenses and commission in respect of the resale and the amount (if any) by which the price obtained on the resale is exceeded by that obtained on the first sale.

(19) A variation of these Conditions shall only be binding on St James's Auctions and the vendor if it is made in writing and signed by a duly authorised representative of St James's Auctions.

(20) These Conditions shall take effect and be construed in accordance with the provisions of English law.
